CALLS DRESSMAKERS TYRANNICAL

Miss Nancy Winston in one of her home-made dresses.

Nancy Winston is probably the only American actress who designs and makes her own wearing apparel. "I broke away from the tentacles of the dressmakers' trust," said Miss Winston, "when I learned that they were inclined to take advantage of the defenseless actress. They made capital out of the fact that we absolutely need the clothes. I would advise every American girl to make herself independent of the dressmakers."

scribes. Mrs. Orrie is the grand chaplain of the grand chapter U. E. O. of Iowa. Thursday evening a banquet was held at Cecilia's in honor of the supreme officers and members of the Wapello shrine. Later a reception was held at the beautiful home of I. W. The Ottumwa shrine feel that much good has been accomplished and new interest aroused in their shrine from this meeting. Mrs. Fannie Lane, the worthy high priestess and several of her officers had been initiated into Vashli shrine of Rock Island and therefore they have high regards for the shrine here. JAIL NEGRO MINISTER; KISSED WHITE GIRL

St. Louis, Mo., July 10.—For kissing and hugging a white girl, Grant Edwards, a negro minister and barber, was fined $100 here yesterday and sentenced to serve six months in jail. Although the nature of the charge against Edwards was kept secret and the trial conducted in private, residents of Ferguson, a fashionable suburb, where the affair occurred, last night learned the details and threatened to lynch the negro. A marshal stood watch at Edwards' home, however, until the crowd dispersed.

At the trial, the plaintiff, Miss Genevieve Boyce, a 19-year-old stenographer, testified that Edwards, the only barber in the suburb, clipped her hair after a recent attack of scarlet fever. Last Wednesday when she went to his shop for scalp treatment, she testified, the negro hugged and kissed her. Edwards was found guilty on a charge of common assault.

"BRAINS BEAT BEAUTY," SAYS PRIZE WINNER

Miss Justine Johnson.

New York, July 10.—Having won three beauty prizes, Miss Justine Johnson of New York has finally become convinced that she is prettier than any other girl in the United States. Asked how it felt to be so pretty, Miss Johnson had this to say to a New York newspaper:

"I am the prettiest girl in America. I was voted the prettiest girl in the Emma Willard school at Troy, N. Y."

"Three different times my photograph has won first prize in beauty contests, the last time getting $5,000 prize."

"Mrs. Fluke, the actress; Harrison Fisher, the artist, and Alfred Stieglitz, art expert, awarded me that prize, and a score of famous artists and photographers have told me I was the prettiest girl they had ever seen."

"Is it any wonder I am convinced I am the prettiest girl in America? 'If I were not a pretty girl I might still be living in Hoboken instead of New York."

"I don't remember exactly when I was first told that I was a pretty girl. Of course, I didn't find it out myself. As near as I can remember—although it wasn't so many years ago—I'm only 20 now—the boys at school told me that I was a beauty."

"When I became a little older and was permitted to go out to parties, the advantages of being pretty became apparent. I became very popular with the boys. They used to give me presents and invite me to dances. Of course, my popularity made some of my girl acquaintances jealous, but that did not annoy me."

"When I was 14 I remember hearing someone say: 'There goes the prettiest girl in Hoboken.' I must say it sounded very nice."

"Not long afterward I received a note from Henry Hutt, the artist, asking me to pose for him. He had heard of me through friends. Naturally, I was excited over the prospect of becoming a model. I lost interest in my high school work—against the wishes of my parents I came to New York and became a model. I was not quite 15."

"My work in studies led to a theatrical engagement. Winthrop Ames heard of my beauty and made me one of the 'unborn children' in 'The Blue Bird'."

"As it required comparatively little of my time I continued posing for Henry Hutt and other well known artists and illustrators. I became sought after by art photographers and I spent hours posing for various advertisements. My picture began to fill advertising pages of the magazines, as well as their covers. In a remarkably short time I became the most photographed girl in New York."

"But my stage experience in 'The Blue Bird' and subsequent engagement at the ill-fated Folies Bergere convinced me that something besides mere beauty is necessary to achieve success."

"I came to realize that brains are quite as essential as beauty. While I did not appreciate it at the time, I realize now how woefully deficient I was in many ways."

"I left the stage and entered the Emma Willard school at Troy, N. Y., where I spent three years, graduating last June."

"I was really made much happier than ever before when I was voted the prettiest girl in Emma Willard school—for it was a tribute from my school girl friends. To be sure, they voted me a flirt, but I suppose every pretty girl is similarly accused."

"If I cannot tell you just how it feels to be the prettiest girl in America, I can tell you from bitter experience that beauty without brains brings little happiness or material advantages."

"If I had my choice between being the prettiest girl in America and the most talented girl, I would unhesitatingly choose the latter."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

From The Argus Files of 1890

July 5.—The Fourth of July was quietly celebrated in Rock Island yesterday under perfect weather conditions. The only celebration of local interest was held by the Industrial Home association at Andrew's Grove. In the morning the labor unions held a parade and at night fireworks were set off. Other celebrations were held at Sterling, Cable, Coal Valley and Taylor Ridge. Only few serious accidents resulted. George Helms, 1302 Fourth avenue, was badly burned about the face by premature explosion of powder. J. F. Black, a Quincy acrobat, met a horrible death at Beardstown, falling 3,000 feet when his balloon caught fire. His wife and parents witnessed the tragedy.

The beautiful First M. E. church building is nearing completion. Miss Annie Sweeney leaves next Wednesday for the seashore for a vacation.

Misses Anna Kilpatrick and Anna Franz leave Monday for Duluth via the river route.

July 7.—Mrs. Miles Judge of Milan was killed almost instantly and her husband seriously injured in a runaway accident near Milan this morning.

The residence of Oia P. Holmberg at Hampton was destroyed by fire last night.

John Arnell, conductor on the Moline and Rock Island horse railway, was fearfully beaten by a gang of toughs near Huber's garden at 11 o'clock last night, following differences over the fare of one of the gang.

Bernard D. Connelly of Topeka,

Kan., is visiting at the home of his parents, Major and Mrs. H. C. Connelly.

July 8.—The democratic convention of the Twenty-first district was called to order today at Cambridge, William McEnty presiding.

C. I. Eggleston, a Chicago salesman, was drowned when he fell from the ferry boat at this point last evening. The body was recovered.

Dr. Carl Bernhardt and D. J. Sears qualified as school directors before City Clerk Koehler this afternoon. Eddie Mauckler had a shoulder fracture in a runaway accident this morning. An elephant in the parade of the Jim Crow show frightened the horse.

July 9.—J. E. Montrose of Lincoln, Neb., has secured a 10-year lease on the Harper hotel from Mrs. Elizabeth Harper. The hostelry will be entirely renovated.

Mayor Wessel of Moline last night vetoed the Nineteenth street sewer drain ordinance.

July 10.—The Riverview Country club of Moline opened its park east of that city last night. Horse racing was the main event on the program.

Beer cards on a system similar to that of the bread cards are now being issued in Munich. Owing to the shortage of malt, unlimited quantities of beer can no longer be sold. The consumption in one large beer garden, which formerly used 2,700 to 3,300 gallons daily, has been cut to 1,100 gallons by the authorities.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A few evenings ago I read a letter in your column written by "Oscar." Your reply was splendid and suggestive. Like you, I wonder if Oscar is worthy of the woman he desires for a wife. I trust you will give me space to express my opinion of Oscar and other men like him.

I think he is thoroughly selfish. His sole thought in seeking a wife is to get one who will constantly drudge, stay at home all the time, have no nice clothes and no recreation. In other words, he wishes to marry a good virtuous woman to be his slave. I think there are no sensible women who would give such a man a second thought. I am a worker. I possess all the "accomplishments" he mentions in his letter, but, believe me, I wouldn't marry such a man if he were the last one left on earth. A man who marries a woman to support him, and who is a slave driver, all belong to the same class. It is a man's business to support the woman he marries and not expect her to support him, and I think it is a small specimen of a man who compels or even allows his wife to take in sewing, washing, etc., shortly after they are married. Of course, reverses often come after marriage; then a wife should be a helpmate in keeping the wolf from the door, but the man who marries with the intention of having his wife for a slave in the home deserves censure. Too many men expect their wives to be strictly virtuous while they, the men, have gone the limit and kept it up after marriage. I have more respect for a man who marries a "woman from the street" of his own class than the one who marries a pure woman while he has "gone the pace." Consistency, that art a jewel. I hope Oscar may read this and think it over, if you consider it worthy of publication.

NELLIE

Thank you Nellie for the interest you have shown in the column.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Like your young man caller of a few evenings ago, I am wondering if I will ever marry. I am waiting for what I consider a REAL MAN, a MAN, in every sense of the word, as near as a human being can. Of course I know we all have our faults, but I think some of us have many we can overcome if we but try. I am a Christian girl and I have tried to live a life that would be worthy of such a man's love. Do you think I will ever marry?

Will you kindly allow me to congratulate the young man for his common sense in attempting to find a REAL WOMAN for a wife? Thank you.

There may be perfect men, but I am afraid they are as scarce as perfect women. Unless you insist upon having an angel with wings I see no reason why you should not marry.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 19 years old, and have been going with a boy friend a year older than myself. I went with him almost a year, and then he stopped coming. I have him on the streets a number of times, and he is always very nice, and talks just as he always used to, but he never tries to explain why he stopped coming. He has been to our house a number of times when I was not home. He always asked about me, and about how I am getting along in my work. I am studying to be a nurse, and he is working his way through college. He you think he cares any for me? I do not know of anything I have done or said that would keep him from coming to our house. It was my birthday a few months ago and he sent me a birthday card. It will be his birthday in a few weeks. Do you think it would be all right for me to send him a birthday card, and also my sister, as she knows the boy very well?

VERA

I do not believe the boy cares especially for you, dear. If he did, he would certainly come to see you. It will be all right, however, for you and your sister to send one birthday card, to which you both sign your name.

Serve with cracked ice. All berries can be used for shrub in like manner, giving a delightful variety of refreshing summer drinks.

TO CLARIFY BUTTER. If one has the misfortune to have rancid butter, put it into a pail, cover it well with water (perhaps one-third as much water as butter), put on the stove and let boil until water is all boiled out. Then take off stove, let cool, slice a large potato raw into it, put on stove again, let cook until done, then repeat. Take off to cool and harden; the butter will be nearly as sweet and fresh as when first churned.

THE TABLE. Berkshire Gems—One-half cup corn meal, one-half cup flour, one-half cup cooked rice, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup scalded milk, one egg one tablespoon melted butter, three tablespoons baking powder, turn milk in meal, let stand five minutes; add rice, and flour stirred with remaining dry ingredients; add salt of egg beaten, butter and white of egg beaten stiff.

Walton Sandwiches—Four slices cooked bacon, four sweet pickles, two hard-boiled eggs; put through meat grinder, mix thoroughly and spread between thin slices of bread. These are excellent for a fisherman's breakfast as a few go a long way. Very good with rye bread.

Quick Beef Stew—Wipe meat out in cubes, sprinkle with salt and pepper and brown bread in hot oil out fat; put in kettle or casserole, and cover with boiling water which has first rinsed the frying pan. Boil five minutes and turn down fire. If you have no leftover vegetables and do not care to cook fresh ones for the stew, get a can of vegetable soup and add without diluting, when the meat has become tender.

Potato Boats—These are baked potatoes scooped out, mashed and returned to shell. But to the usual milk and seasoning add very finely chopped parsley and egg, which improve the flavor; sprinkle the top with melted butter and paprika.

TO PRESERVE LIMEJUICE. First thoroughly cleanse by washing with soap and warm water and allow to dry. Then rub over with cloth dipped in a paste made of flour and water. This gives it a glossy appearance and saves constant washing, as when dirty it only needs rubbing with a damp cloth.
